

Hello, my name is Rob Randall. I am a PADI Staff instructor with The Dive School and I am qualified to teach our full range of courses and specialty programmes. I am absolutely passionate about diving and it is a privilege to be able to share my experience and knowledge with others interested in this great activity.

I have dived extensively in UK waters and in the Red Sea, The Mediterranean, Indian Ocean, Coral Sea and The Caribbean and it never ceases to amaze me how very different and beautiful these environments are. I love diving on wrecks and discovering the variety of marine life you can find on them, in all its various forms.

I am also passionate about underwater conservation and a keen supporter of a number of charitable organisations that promote the wellbeing of our seas and oceans.

I get a great thrill from teaching, whether absolute beginners or those with some diving experience who want to continue their diving adventure. I am enthusiastic about all aspects of this great activity and I hope some of that rubs off on my students.

I have to warn you though - once you're bitten by the diving bug there's no going back!

Come on in, the water's lovely!!!
